

Danielle Wood – biography

Danielle has more than 15 years' experience as an economist in government, consulting and the not-for-profit sector.

She is currently the Budget Policy and Institutional Reform Program Director at the Grattan Institute where her research and advocacy efforts focus on tax and budget policy, inequality, competition policy and political reform.

Danielle is a regular media commentator and speaker on economic policy issues.

Danielle has a Masters of Economics and a Masters in Competition Law from the University of Melbourne and a Bachelor of Economics from the University of Adelaide. Danielle is the National Chair of the Women in Economics Network and sits on the Central Council for the Economic Society of Australia.